OFF THE HOOK

When your telephone is left accidentally off the hook, it registers the same as a call at Central. If the operator gets no response to her "Number, please," the number is handed over to the repairing forces as being out of order. All this involves tests, reports and time. In the meantime, no one gets on your telephone.

"Off the hook" is a very common cause of interruption to telephone service. By the exercise of care in this connection you will protect your service and avoid inconvenience to yourself and others.

James Island News Items

(Review Correspondent)
JAMES ISLAND, Oct. 23.—The little bird that's always telling tales on people will be kept busy for the next few days. When he sees two or three walking off from tennis he will hop around and listen with all his beak, and he may hear one say that if he dyes his pyjamas yellow and pastes black paper owls all over it he might come as—and another would perhaps chip in with "how about getting ma's orange lamp shade and putting cats on it and some ribbon shoulder straps—?" but we are not going to tell the world what we mean to wear at the masquerade. It must wait until next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowbotham and three boys arrived home from England on Sunday after a rough voyage and an adventurous railway journey. They came in for an Atlantic October gale as they crossed on the "Canada" and on the railway were twice detained, once by the engine and two cars running off the track, and later for 17 hours by a freight train which ran off the track in front of them.

Mr. Billy Lake stole a march on everyone last week, and has "been and gone and got married!" The village juvenile band was all ready tuned up to greet the happy couple on Friday and were disappointed when they found that Mr. and Mrs. Lake had stolen home on Thursday night.

A little surprise party consisting of some of the younger set visited Miss Bradley and her parents in their new home on Friday night. Although they had scarcely unpacked and put their house in order, Miss Bradley, who had a sort of premonition of what was to come, gave her guests a hearty welcome and all spent a jolly evening. The guests were Miss Margaret Eyres, Miss Connie Ford, Miss Morrison and Messrs. Rivers, Whalen, Cooper, Sinclair and Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm arrived here last Wednesday morning and turned up at the whist drive in the evening. They are staying with Mrs. T. Whalen until Dr. Pollock's house can be made ready for them, and are having their meals at Mrs. Pierce's.

The whist drive was well attended again. Miss Morrison was the winner of the ladies' prize and Mr. Dakin carried off the prize for the men.

Mrs. Henderson, wife of Mr. "Happy" Henderson, and baby, came to the island on Saturday to stay for a few days at Mrs. Rowbottom's.

Mrs. Branson is spending a day or two with her daughter, Mrs. H. Burrows.

LIM FI

Dear Editor, you ask me why I should discourse on one Lim Fi? I answer you as I think fit. That in some circles Fi is "IT." For men may come and men may go. (Life's so uncertain here below) But still Lim Fi remains extant. The Boscoe of the Sulphate Plant. Fi's versatility's alarming. We heard he once went in for farming. And for a reasonable rent. Has run a swell establishment. Where one can board and eat one's "leese." And play Pan Tan at night, "all nice." Now, Lim Fi holds it base and wrong to play a trade that's not his Tong; And if you ask him why that's so He says "You know, you know, you know." Yet he has other aspirations. I would, brick-laying his inclination. Are went to tend. Just see him plumbly plumb five blocks that fall down chimney. "A genius wasted!" you would cry—That's all this week about Lim Fi.

Messrs. F. B. and E. L. Allen took a trip to Sidney Island last Friday to fetch a cow and calf which they towed behind the "Double O" in a scow. They reached the western side of James Island that night and waited for the tide to turn. When it did a thick, heavy fog settled down, so they had to lie there all night. The captain and engineer resigned themselves to their fate, lighting a fire and trying to get some sleep on the rather hard bunks, but poor old mother cow had come away without her bed socks and wasn't half pleased. They started up at dawn and felt their way into the Lagoon. The cow and calf are doing well and send thanks for kind enquiries.

Mr. Neal is building an addition to the "Happy Home" and it will be still happier with ten rooms instead of only two. Mr. Neal expects two of his sisters from Scotland to join him out here next year.

Members of the tennis club took advantage of the splendid weather last Friday and enjoyed a game during the day.

There is quite a boom in open fire place building on the island just now, at least four being built at the present time. Your correspondent is of the opinion that the one being built by Mr. J. Ingms is the most unique. It is of granite in the shape of an arch, the piers on either side being 16 inches wide. The fire place is 3 ft. long and 22 ins. deep, lined with fire brick and finished off with a mantle, 6 ft. over all. Mr. Ingms got the granite off his land. Mr. Hays and Mr. F. Bennet are doing the work.

THOSE FIRECRACKERS.

We enjoy seeing the young folks having a good time, but we would like to point out that there may be a serious outcome of the present firecracker craze in this community. There is lots of vacant space where the young folks could set off the fireworks without any danger, but they seem to think that the only place to do the job is near buildings of some sort, or on the streets. If firecrackers are to be permitted we would suggest to the boys and girls that they set them off on some vacant lot. Fire is a serious thing, especially in a town which has not up-to-date equipment to fight it with. Being an unorganized district, we do not know whether there is any law regulating this matter. If there is no law governing the question we would suggest that it would be better if the boys and girls were to do their celebrating on a vacant lot where there would be no danger from fire. The parents would help considerably if they were to instruct their children to keep away from buildings when playing with fireworks.

BUFFALO GIFT TO LORD BYNG.

Several characteristic Canadian gifts have been made to Lord Byng during his western tour. Upon his arrival at Wainwright, Alta., recently, where the party detained in order to visit the great buffalo herd in the national reserve there, he was met by the massed school children and large numbers of the citizens and presented with a civic address mounted upon a buffalo skin. Later, their excellencies and party motored to the National Park and inspected the herd of over 7,000 buffalo, as well as the moose, elk and cattalo contained in the enclosure. Some prime buffalo meat was also presented to the Vice Regal party who thoroughly enjoyed this unusual gastronomic treat.

While at Edmonton His Excellency was presented with a fine mounted buffalo head and the Cree Indians from the Hobbema Reserve created him Chief Buffalo Head of their tribe.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

"OLD JESS"

(To be sung at the Community Dance, Deep Cove, on Nov. 3, 1922)

Melody—"Poor Old Jeff."

There was a "Mare," her name was Jess,
A dear old thing was she.
She used to hang around somewheres
Near Deep Cove by the sea,
And everybody loved her well,
She was so full of fun.
No longer will we tear our hair,
Or swear we'll get our gun.

Chorus.

For poor old Jess has gone to rest
On Salt Spring far away.
No more she'll pinch our turnip tops
And carrots day by day.

Old Jess was quite a clever horse—
I mean a clever mare—
Barbed wire held no fears for her;
For gates she did not care.
She'd either climb or jump a fence
Or pull it all to bits.
She was a terror to the place
And gave the neighbors fits.

Chorus.

Now, Jess was no fool at all,
And dearly loved her "lot."
For Frank, her boss, was good to her,
And many a "nip" she got.
When she went to the liquor store
A smile lit up her eye—
But now her days are numbered sure,
For Salt Spring's gone bone dry.

Chorus.

FORGOTTEN

(By Helen Kirk)

I saw her as she passed me, and I knew her by name, Muriel Lennard; but why that look of a haunted creature in her eyes and the breathless haste with which she ran past me as if some ghostly vision were chasing her. I took out my watch and looked at it; it was 10.30, and the day was June 10, 1920, Sunday evening.

The next morning the big headlines in the paper struck me almost dumb: "Man found murdered in one of the back streets of this city, only possession found on him were blank insurance papers, $500, a gold watch, a ladies' diamond ring and a pearl-handled pen-knife, initialed 'C. from M. L.', with one stained blade, lying open, was found on the pavement beside him."

I did not know who "C." was, but I thought I knew pretty well whom "M. L." was.

Muriel Lennard was a pretty girl, dangerously pretty, considering that she was an heiress, having no family except an elderly uncle who was her guardian. She was just nineteen and, as gossip went, had been forced by her uncle to pledge herself to marry a rich New Yorker (whose name no one here knew) twenty-five years her senior. Thence said that her uncle should have learned by experience, having himself married a chorus girl twenty years younger than himself; they had quarrelled violently, she had left him and gone over to France and had never been heard of since; they said he had forgotten her, but perhaps this was only gossip.

The next day the papers gave the information that the murdered man had been identified, he was a wealthy New York broker named Thomas Hadden, who had come just a week ago from the east to visit his old friend Col. Lennard of this city, and still it did not mention the name of Muriel Lennard.

On the Friday morning, June 10, I called on Muriel. I introduced myself and then I "struck out" and told her all I knew of the story; the same terrified look which had been in her eyes last Sunday evening came into them now; she looked me squarely in the face and said "I did not do it, but who will believe me?" I saw she spoke the truth so I said "I will."

Let us follow for a short time the adventures of the little neglected wife of Col. Lennard; heartbroken she went to Paris and from there unto New York to her former place on the stage until now for five years she had reigned a favorite in one of the largest theatres there. Then Thomas Hadden came into her life, remained there for four years, then as quickly as he came he went, giving her as an explanation that he was called suddenly to Montreal on business; she asked him if he had many friends there! he told her he knew only two people there; an old Colonel Lennard and his niece (but he did not tell her that the business was to marry Muriel Lennard). He noticed she looked very tired and pale for the rest of the evening, but thought she was tired after her evening performance at the theatre; he left her then and forgot, but she did not.

On the evening of June 18, I was sitting smoking quietly in the den, as the rings of smoke rose into the air the sad face of Muriel Lennard appeared in each. Why couldn't I forget that girl? I put down my pipe and picked up a magazine. On the front page was an article on the subject of "Women Smoking," by "Muriel." I hastily put down the magazine. How still the house was; Mrs. Stewart, the housekeeper, had gone out and I was left alone in my mansion. Who was it who said "Solitude is bliss"? I am sure the person who wrote that must never have stayed alone in a house on a windy night, with one's thoughts which were centred on a murder. Why did the wind have to blow tonight of all nights? Did it not have 365 other nights in the year to blow? The windows shook, the blinds rattled, doors slammed and then came "the calm after the storm." I listened, and sure enough down that large dark, gloomy hall I heard footsteps resounding in its hollowness, they came haltingly at first and then with more assurance; they stopped when they came to the door of the room which I was in, and then from under the crack of the closed door came a long white folded slip of paper. I sat terror-stricken. If my life had depended upon it I could not have moved then. I listened again and heard the footsteps gradually receding and dying away. I rose and picked up the piece of paper, unfolded it and read—

"Trust her; she did not do it."

"It" I knew stood for the murder of Thomas Hadden, and I also knew who "she" was, and as for trusting, would I back to Muriel again? This was terrible. If something didn't happen soon I would go crazy.

I need not have been so very anxious for something to happen. It happened without being wished for. Col. Lennard had disappeared! Although the detective worked on the case day and night they found no clue to the mystery, except the remains of a half-burned letter, just four words being left of it:

"—or; I don't forget. Mary."

I now decided that there was perhaps some foundation for the gossip of the old Colonel having a wife.

Something else happened a week after this which gave me courage of my convictions. I received a letter written in the same hand-writing as the one which I received that memorable night. It read:

"I killed Thomas Hadden. Mary Lennard."

I took this letter immediately to the detectives. They had no more clues than those which they had previously discovered. Muriel also received a letter from the same source. It read:

"Muriel, many years ago, when your mother was dying I swore I would always look after you and protect you as if you were my own daughter. I did not forget that promise which I gave so long ago. I did not want you to be forced to make the same mistake I made of marrying a man so many years my senior. I saw you come to meet Thomas Hadden and when you found he was dead I saw you take his ring off your finger and put it into his pocket. I do not fear death. Your uncle ruined my life, and I swore that he would not ruin yours too. Mary Lennard."

The next morning the paper told of the death of a man and his wife. They were riding on a west-bound train at midnight. There was a collision, and everybody in carriage No. 102 were killed, and all were murdered except this man and his wife. There were no papers on the man and no name on their personal articles. The only thing that the woman could be identified by at all was the initials on a signet ring which she wore. They were "M. L."

Liver Pains

Pains under the shoulder blades tell of liver derangements. Other indications are sailow complexion, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and bilious headaches.

The quickest way to arouse the liver to healthful action is by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Continued use will insure lasting relief, correct the whole digestive system and purify the blood.

Mrs. Wm. Narten, Hanover, Ont., writes:

"For some time I suffered from liver trouble. There was a hard, bearing-down feeling in my back which I could not get rid of. Some one advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and found them excellent. The dragging feeling in my back disappeared and I felt much benefited generally. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and always keep them on hand for general use."

REVIEW OF CALGARY MARKET

(From Market Examiner, Calgary)

CATTLE

CALGARY, Oct. 19.—Beef—Prices at Calgary fairly steady, but market shows only moderate demand for any but choice; best heavy steers, $4@4.35; choice light, $3.75@4.25; good, $3.25@3.75; medium, $2.50@3.25; common, $2@2.50. Choice cows, $2.75@3.15; good, $2.25@2.75; medium, $2@2.25; common, $1.25@2; canners, $1@1.25. Choice heifers up to $3.25; common to good, $2@2.75. Bulls slightly higher, with $2@2.25 for choice; common and medium, $1@1.75. Calves slightly lower; choice, $3.25@3.65; common, $1.50@3. Feeders and Stockers—Choice heavy steers up to $3.85; bulk, $3.25@3.75; stocker steers, $2@3.25. Stocker heifers, $1.75@2.50; bulk, $2@2.35. Stocker cows, $1.25@2.

HOGS

Packers succeeded in breaking the Calgary market last week-end, and sale this week opened at $9; today's price, $9.

SHEEP

Calgary had heavy sheep receipts during the week; lambs from $10.25 down; weathers, $7.75 down; ewes, $6 down.

PRODUCE

Eggs—Calgary price on extra good eggs stronger, and quoted 30c@32c; No. 1, 25c@26c; No. 2, 19c@20c; more No. 2 eggs being used owing to scarcity of better grades. Creamery butter—Bulk price, basis specials, holding steady at 35½c, Calgary and Edmonton; coast trade and home demand taking most of make. Dairy butter—Steady, with fancy table in demand at 32c@35c; grades from 25c down. Butterfat—Unchanged on basis 38c specials; prospects good for coming season. Poultry—More coming in at Calgary, and rush will start soon; prices unchanged yet, with chicken, 11c@13c; fowl, 8c@10c; old roosters, 8c; ducks, 12c; geese, 14c; turkeys, 18c@20c; ducks, geese and turkeys not wanted yet. Potatoes—Demand slow; prices $16.50@18, Calgary delivery.

GRAIN

Wheat has been showing a healthier tone during the past week, and though there are serious transportation difficulties owing to the congestion at the lakes and a partial embargo on shipping to Vancouver, the market is holding up well. European buyers are expected to come in the market more freely later on, but they are not showing much anxiety so far. Threshing in the southern and part of the central portions of Alberta is nearly finished, and other districts well ahead.

HAY

Lack of demand for hay that can be moved and lack of cars to move hay that is in demand is putting the hay market in a poor shape. Upland prices dropped, with dealers buying at country points, $10.50@17; green feed, $10@11; very little feed moving.

HIDES

Green salted butcher hides advanced during week; and now quoted 9c city delivery; others unchanged; butcher flint dried, 12c; kip, 8c@9c; calf, 10c@12c.

FURS

Uncertainty now shown in tone of fur market, and dealers have different opinions as to values, and opening of season may show changed prices.

BAKED APPLE JELLY

Put a two-quart can (granite or earthen) with alternate layers of sliced apples and sugar. Bake three hours, closely covered. This is delicious and should turn out a solid pink jelly.

Rude Rural Rhymes

PLUMBING

O brothers when I start to eat I want no flies upon my meat, but when I hear the critters humming and see some forty 'leven coming, I'm glad I live where folks have plumbing. A fly is never clean and neat; he may have garbage on his feet. In country homes e'en in this new age he often carries germs and sewage. O let us rise and give our thanks to him who first made septic tanks. How dear to my heart is a cool drink of water, poured by some farmer's charming daughter. While gazing on that glowing cheek, of germs how can I think or speak? (But if I drink can I avoid the lurking dangers of typhoid?) I fear I must delay the draught that I may look before and aft, survey the landscape near and far and see where certain buildings are; then, noting slope of hill and plain, determine where these buildings drain. And even if a glance should show the well above, all else below, some excavating should be done to see how straight the strata run. Perhaps they dip, perhaps they bend, perhaps in that old well they end. And so, sweet Hebe, don't you think you really out to boil my drink? Though dear to my heart is the old oaken bucket, the old leather sucker or chain on a sprocket, I view the same with grave alarm at many a home, on many a farm. I do not like that building's style, let's move it back a half a mile; or, better still, let's join the ranks of those who have good septic tanks.

—BOB ADAMS.

MANY BEARS

We have received the following interesting account of a trip made by Provincial Constable Bishop, formerly of Sidney:

Just a few lines about a little trip I took from Williams Lake to Lillooet by saddle horse and pack horse. You will know, of course, that we island folks are not very well acquainted in the sticks as they call it up here. I had never been any further south from the Chilcotin river than Riske Creek. I might state that I was making a special game patrol through this district. I made as far as Riske Creek first night; next night I camped down by the Fraser River at the mouth of the Chilcotin River. I found several mountain sheep there. I understand they winter there. I then left for Big Creek right across country, camping at Farewell Creek over night. I then went down to Lang Ranch Meadow and back to Big Creek at Church's place. From there I went up Big Creek to the Summit, then down the south side to French Bar Creek. I camped there two days and found quite a lot of Indians out from the Nemah Valley catching ground hogs for their winter food. I saw one camp that had 82 skins up drying, and some very fine specimens they were. I then returned back to the Summit and down Iron Creek to Whitewater. I saw a few goats on the high passes at the Summit and lots of grouse and prairie chickens, and I tell you they were very tame. I could have caught them very easy by putting salt on their tails, but, of course, my salt was in the pack.

I stopped at Taylor Camp at Whitewater one night, and they left for Granite Creek to interview another lot of Indians. I then returned to Whitewater Lake and camped for a day. From there I went up over the Warner's Pass and camped in rather high altitude, 7,000 feet. Ten inches of snow fell on Sept. 3, and it was rather fresh betting up at 5 a.m. You may think that rather early, but I will explain that my camp was not very well equipped for lights, and it was dark at 8 p.m., so you see the altitude being high and the wood very scarce I had not much fire. I left Green Lake, going down the south side, which was very welcome to me. If ever you can spare the time and want some real good trout fishing that is the place to visit. I pulled out six trout weighing about 1½ lbs. each. The only difficulty with me was I had no one to put me wise. But I will put you wise before you come up, and be sure and bring up a large umbrella so the trout cannot see you bait your hook.

Leaving here, I visited the Bridge River in the bear country. I saw thirteen black and brown bears in one day. Some of them would sit and eat berries quite close to the road. I did not camp very long there, but left as soon as possible for Lillooet, and I must say I quite enjoyed the corn and peaches after bannock and beans in the hills for nineteen days.

LITTLE HINTS ON HOW THINGS ARE BEING WORN

Boots are being worn well down on the heels this autumn.

Cuffs are being worn higher this season, especially after the first week.

Ladies' hats this fall are much the same as those of last year, except that here and there they have been touched up in price.

Never wash a baby's clothes in water containing soda. This is a frequent source of irritation and chafing.

FOUND!

SLOAN, the Shoemaker, Beacon Avenue, Sidney, B. C., heartily thanks all those who found his "Tooth." Some of the discoverers must have taken Sloan for an "elephant, a buffalo, a goat or a lamb." There may be a streak of the "Buffalo" in Sloan, and on several occasions he has no doubt been a bit of a "goat," but he certainly is no "lamb." The lucky finder of the original molar as advertised for in the Sidney Review, Thomas Wylie, Queen's avenue, may claim his reward at any time. The "tooth," along with others, will be on view in Sloan's Shoe Store window Saturday and Sunday first, and on Monday evening, 30th inst., at 7:30 prompt, it will be welded into its old subdivision by Craig the blacksmith, Second street. After the installation a collection will be taken up in aid of Sloan's progressive scheme for the erection in the "Park" of one, two, three and four roomed bungalows, furnished, and with all modern conveniences for the free use of summer tourists. Here's your chance to "dig one over" on Victoria, Vancouver, Seattle and Saanichton. Come. Admission free.

AT THE AUDITORIUM

"THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH"

The picturization of this famous book will be seen at the Auditorium tomorrow and Saturday evenings. Those who have read the story will no doubt be anxious to see the picture, and as a consequence the Auditorium will be taxed to capacity for the two evenings. In addition to the feature there will be a good comedy and other pictures. To those unfamiliar with the story of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" the story, as shown on the silver sheet follows:

Lachlan Campbell, a stern Puritanical deacon of the "Kirk" at Drumtochty, Scotland, quarrels with his daughter Flora, when he learns that she is engaged in a love affair with Lord Malcolm Hay, son and heir of the Earl of Kinspindie. The latter is anxious that his son wed Kate Carnegie, the most beautiful and wealthy girl of the village, despite the fact that Rev. John Carmichael, the minister, loves her in his quiet unobtrusive way.

But Lord Hay loves Flora and beside the Bonnie Brier Bush he makes her his wife, by Scottish rite, with Posty, a letter carrier, as the only witness. The couple are surprised by Campbell, who orders Hay to leave. Flora faints and Campbell carries her home. Hay and his father go to London and Flora hears that her sweetheart is to wed Kate. While she is writing a letter to him, her father surprises her and on learning the truth, he turns Flora from his door and she goes to London in search of Lord Hay.

Learning that he has gone to France, Flora obtains employment in an humble shop and becomes seriously ill. Meanwhile, Lord Hay returns and begins a search for Flora. Dr. William MacClure has found and taken her to her father, who is overjoyed at her return. The earl urges his son to marry Kate, but she refuses him, openly declaring her love for Carmichael. When Lord Hay goes to Campbell's cottage to see Flora, Campbell threatens him. The truth of his marriage to Flora is disclosed until Posty announces that he wishes to be the witness.

BOY SCOUTS

As Halloween is next Tuesday night, I want to ask the Scouts especially, and the boys in general, not to do damage or put others to a lot of inconvenience by their celebration. Have fun, but remember your Scout promise to "Help other people at all times."

The Troop will meet tonight at 7 o'clock, in plain clothes.
